Supplier Code of Conduct

1. Environmental Dimension

The business operations of the Company's partners should not focus solely on the benefits they receive. Partners must conduct their business responsibly, with environmental responsibility being an unavoidable duty that must be respected. They should be aware of the impacts throughout the entire operational process, from start to finish, in order to avoid or prevent actions that may harm the environment and to ensure sustainable long-term business collaboration.

Good Practices Guidelines

- 1.1 The Company expects its business partners to conduct their operations with awareness of potential environmental impacts, both in the short and long term.
- 1.2 Partners should consistently implement measures, guidelines, and operational procedures that comply with environmental laws and demonstrate responsibility.
- 1.3 Beyond efforts to avoid or prevent environmental harm, partners are encouraged to support or promote activities that conserve and restore the environment whenever possible.
- 1.4 Partners are committed to fostering environmental awareness as an integral part of their organizational culture.

2. Social Dimension

Business operations in managing relationships and treating all stakeholder groups with fairness and equality, while being attentive to their entitled rights and expectations, must always be a priority for business partners. Regardless of whether the stakeholders are primary or secondary groups, they all play an essential and unavoidable role in sustainable business operations.

Good Practices Guidelines

- 2.1. Company encourages and expects its business partners to strictly respect and uphold human rights in all operations.
- 2.2. Business partners should give importance to labor practices in full compliance with applicable laws in the following areas:
 - 2.2.1 Employment practices, including prohibition of forced labor and child labor
 - 2.2.2 Working hours, weekly rest days, and public holidays

- 2.2.4 Equal treatment and non-discrimination
- 2.2.5 Prevention of sexual harassment
- 2.2.6 Development of skills and operational knowledge
- 2.2.7 Opportunities for career growth and advancement
- 2.2.8 Workplace well-being and happiness
- 2.2.9 Occupational health, safety, and a healthy working environment

- 2.3. Business partners should give importance to and show respect for shareholders by disclosing material information to them in an equal, transparent, and fair manner.
- 2.4. Business partners should establish guidelines, measures, or operational standards that respect the ethical rights of customers by delivering quality products or services.
- 2.5. Business partners should establish effective guidelines, measures, or standards for safeguarding customers' personal data.
- 2.6. Business partners should prioritize customer satisfaction and establish approaches to continuously improve it.
- 2.7. Refrain from any actions that may directly or indirectly affect the well-being of communities located near the company.

3. Governance Dimension

Business partners should prioritize conducting business with transparency, fairness, and integrity, while respecting regulations and complying with all applicable laws in relation to competitors, customers, government and private sector entities, employees at all levels, and all stakeholder groups.

Good Practices Guidelines

- 3.1 Business partners should have effective guidelines or measures for maintaining confidentiality and preventing the misuse of insider information for personal gain (Confidentiality of Information & Insider Trading/Dealing).
- 3.2 Business partners should conduct business with transparency and avoid any transactions that may constitute fraud or corruption.
- 3.3 Companies should establish policies or operational guidelines for executives, employees, and relevant persons to prevent and combat corruption (Anti-Corruption).
